The Client is aware that circumstances could arise in which the remedies and limitations on liability set forth herein may appear insufficient to the Client. In the light of the overall agreement reached hereunder, the Client agrees that the limited remedies and liabilities of UOBAM set out herein are part of a reasonable allocation of the risks and benefits of the agreement between the parties taking all relevant factors into consideration and the availability and costs of insurance with respect to the said risks.

the event of force majeure continues.

If a Relevant Individual withdraws the aforesaid consent, the Client agrees to inform UOBAM in writing immediately. As a result of such withdrawal, UOBAM may not be in a position to continue to provide its products and/or services to the Client and the withdrawal may, in certain circumstances, be considered a termination by the Client of any contractual relationship which the Client may have with UOBAM and a breach of the Client's contractual obligations or undertakings. UOBAM's legal rights and remedies in such event are expressly reserved.

- 13.7. As UOBAM relies on the information including the Personal Data provided to provide the services in these Terms and Conditions, the Client agrees to ensure that at all times the information provided is correct, accurate and complete. SCHEDULE 2

UOBAM Invest Account – Risk Disclosure Statement

Unless defined in this Risk Disclosure Statement, capitalised terms defined in the UOBAM Invest Account Terms and Conditions have the same meaning when used in this Risk Disclosure Statement.

This Risk Disclosure Statement should not be considered to be an exhaustive list of the risks which the Client should consider before opening and investing through the Account. The Client should be aware that investing through the Account may be subject to other risks of an exceptional nature from time to time.

UOBAM may, by notice to the Client, at any time in its sole and absolute discretion, add to, amend or vary this Risk Disclosure Statement and any additions, amendments or variations shall take effect and the Client shall be deemed to be notified of the same from such date as UOBAM may prescribe in the notice. The Client's continued use of its Account after such modification has come into effect shall be deemed an agreement by the Client to the Risk Disclosure Statement as so modified. The latest version of this Risk Disclosure Statement is published on the Website.

General warning

1. All investments involve risks. Before investing through the Account, the Client should consider and satisfy itself as to the risks of investing.
2. The Client should be aware that the value of its Portfolio and the income from the Portfolio's underlying investments (if any) may fall as well as rise, and that it may not get back its original investment. Past performance of any investment is not indicative of its future performance.
3. Any investment should be made only after consultation with independent qualified sources of investment, legal and tax advice. There can be no assurance that any investment strategy (including UOBAM's) will be successful or that the investment objective of any Fund will be met.

General risks

4. Market risks

The Client should consider and satisfy itself as to the usual risks of investing and participating in securities. Prices of securities may go up or down in response to changes in economic conditions, interest rates and the market's perception of securities which in turn may cause the value of units of its investments to rise or fall. There can be no assurance that any appreciation in value will occur.

For instruments listed on public exchanges, the exchange generally has the right to suspend or limit trading under certain circumstances. Such suspensions or limits could lead to losses.

Furthermore, some of the markets or exchanges invested into may prove to be illiquid or highly volatile from time to time and this may affect the price at which investments may be liquidated to meet withdrawals or realisations.

5. Investment strategy

Successful implementation of any investment strategy requires accurate assessments of general economic conditions, the prospects of individual companies or industries, and/or the future behaviour of other financial market participants. Even with the most careful analysis, the direction of the financial markets are often driven by unforeseeable economic, political and other events and the reaction of market participants to these events. There can be no assurance that any investment strategy will be successful and an unsuccessful strategy may result in significant losses.

6. Foreign exchange and currency risks

A Portfolio may have exposure, either directly or indirectly, to a wide range of currencies. Where Portfolio investments are denominated in a foreign currency, fluctuations of the exchange rates of such foreign currency against the base currency of the Portfolio or the Account may affect the value of the Portfolio.

Additionally, a Fund may have classes of units that are denominated in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund. Changes in the exchange rate between the base currency of the Fund and the base currency of any such class of units may lead to a depreciation of the value of the units of the class, as expressed in the base currency of the class of units.

7. Political, regulatory and legal risks

The value and price of an investment may be adversely affected by international political developments, changes in exchange controls, taxation policies, monetary and fiscal policies, foreign investment policies, government policies, restrictions on repatriation of investments and other changes in the laws, regulations, restrictions and controls in the relevant countries in which the investments are made.

Currency exchange rates, currency investments and debt securities (in particular, government bonds and treasury notes) are also subject to risks arising from government regulation of or intervention in currency and government debt markets which could adversely affect the performance of an investment. Securities issued or guaranteed by governments also present risks of losses in the event of default or debt restructuring.

8. Interest rate risks

Interest rates are determined by factors of supply and demand in the international money markets which are influenced by macroeconomic factors, speculation and central bank and government intervention. Fluctuations in interest rates of the currencies in which investments of a Portfolio are denominated, or fluctuations in interest rates of the currencies in which the underlying assets comprised in the investments of a Portfolio are denominated, may affect the value of the Portfolio.

9. Fixed income and debt securities risks

Investments in fixed income or debt securities (whether direct or indirect) may be subject to the risks that are typical of such instruments, such as interest rate risks and default risk.

Interest rate risks will arise from unexpected changes in the term structure of interest rates, which are in turn dependent on general economic conditions. In general, the prices of debt securities are subject to interest rate fluctuations; prices of debt securities generally rise when interest rate falls, and generally fall when interest rate rises. The longer the term of a debt security, the more sensitive it will be to fluctuations in value from interest rate changes. In addition, such investments are subject to the specific ability of the issuers of such securities to meet their debt obligations and are hence dependent on the financial health of the issuers, which may change adversely over time due to their specific business conditions and general market conditions.

Investments in fixed income or debt securities are subject to adverse changes in the financial condition of the issuer, or in general economic conditions, or both, or an unanticipated rise in interest rates, which may impair the ability of the issuer to make payments of interest and principal especially if the issuer is highly leveraged. Such issuer's ability to meet its debt obligations may also be adversely affected by specific corporate developments, or the issuer's inability to meet specific projected business forecasts, or the unavailability of additional financing. Also, an economic downturn or an increase in interest rates may increase the potential for default by the issuers of these securities. Therefore, investments in debt securities may lead to greater volatility in the value of a Portfolio. Also, a change in the credit rating of a debt security as a result of any of the above factors can affect that security's liquidity and therefore have an impact on the value of a Portfolio.

10. Realisation (redemption) risks

Where there is no secondary market for units of a Fund or where the realisation of units is subject to the restrictions as set out in the offering documents of the relevant Fund, the Client may not be able to dispose of or realise its investment at the time of its choosing.

A Fund may not be required to maintain sufficient cash holdings at all times to meet realisation requests from time to time. In the event of a significant amount of realisation requests, it may not be possible to liquidate the relevant Fund's investments in a timely manner to meet all such realisations, or the relevant fund manager may be able to do so only at prices which do not reflect the true value of such investments, resulting in an adverse effect on the net asset value of the relevant Fund and the value of its units.

A Fund may, at the sole discretion of the relevant fund manager, compulsorily cause an investor to realise, in whole or in part, its units. Voluntary realisations are permitted only on certain days in accordance with the offering documents of the relevant Fund. In addition, realisation of units of a Fund may be suspended or limited from time to time in the circumstances described in the relevant Fund's offering documents.

11. In-specie realisations

Where a Fund makes in-specie realisations, such non-cash realisations could expose the realising investors to some or all of the risks associated with investments as described in the offering documents of the relevant Fund.

12. Exceptional market conditions

Under certain market conditions, it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate or rebalance positions. For example, this may occur during volatile markets or crisis situations or where trading under the rules of the relevant stock exchange is suspended, restricted or otherwise impaired. During such times, it may not be possible to dispose of certain assets due to thin trading or lack of a market or buyers. Placing a stop-loss order may not necessarily limit losses to intended amounts as market conditions may make it impossible to execute such an order at the ideal price. In addition, such circumstances may force the disposal of assets at reduced prices, thereby adversely affecting investment performance. Further, such investments may be difficult to value with any degree of accuracy or certainty. The dumping of securities in the market could further deflate prices.

If a Fund incurs substantial trading losses, the need for liquidity could rise sharply at the same time that access to liquidity is impaired. Further, in a market downturn, a Fund's counterparties' financial conditions could be weakened, thereby increasing that Fund's credit risk.

13. Actions of institutional investors

A fund manager may accept subscriptions from institutional investors and such subscriptions may constitute a large portion of the total investments in the relevant Fund. Whilst these institutional investors will not have any control over the fund manager's investment decisions, the actions of such investors may have a material effect on the relevant Fund. For example, substantial realisations of units in a Fund by an institutional investor over a short period of time could necessitate the liquidation of the relevant Fund's assets at a time and in a manner which does not provide the most economic advantage to the Fund and which could therefore adversely affect the value of the relevant Fund's assets.

14. Repatriation of capital, dividends, interest and other income risks

In some situations, it may not be possible for to repatriate capital, dividends, interest and other income from certain countries, or it may require government consent to do so. Investment value could be adversely affected by the introduction of the requirement for any such consent, or delays in or the failure to grant any such consent, for the repatriation of funds or by any official intervention affecting the process of settlement of transactions which may in turn affect the repatriation of funds. Economic or political conditions could lead to the revocation or variation of consent granted prior to investment being made in any particular country or to the imposition of new restrictions.

15. Derivatives risks

The Client's Portfolio may be directly or indirectly exposed to financial derivative instruments (or derivatives) such as options and futures, swaps, forward contracts, credit derivatives, spot foreign exchange, caps and floors and contracts for differences or other derivative transactions. The risks associated with derivatives are very different from those incurred in other investments. When buying a share, for example, the maximum loss is the amount originally paid for it. Derivatives, on the other hand, exhibit many different risk profiles.

Some derivatives provide limited risk and unlimited upside potential. For example, on purchasing a call option, the risk is limited to the amount paid to hold the call option whereas the potential profit is unlimited. On the other hand, some derivatives may display risk characteristics pursuant to which the potential gain is limited, whereas losses are potentially unlimited. Some derivatives seek to modify or replace the investment performance of particular securities, future interests, interest rates, indices or markets, with or without leverage. Furthermore, derivatives may be used for hedging purposes or otherwise, for example, to reduce transaction costs, achieve greater liquidity, create effective exposure to international financial markets or a specific security, or increase speed and flexibility in making portfolio changes. Although derivatives are often used to minimize risk, derivatives have their own kinds of additional risks, such as:

- the use of derivatives for hedging purposes may not be effective;
- some derivatives may limit the potential for gain, as well as for loss;
- the cost of entering and maintaining derivative contracts may reduce total investment return;
- the price of a derivative may not accurately reflect the value of its underlying asset;
- there is no guarantee that a market will exist when a decision has been made to buy or sell a derivative contract;
- exchanges may set daily trading limits on certain derivative contracts. These could prevent the closure of a contract; and
- volatility and counterparty risk (see "OTC markets and market participants risk") below).

16. OTC markets and market participants risks

Some investments may not be effected in a regulated market or through a recognised clearing organisation, but may trade on over-the-counter (or OTC) markets in which there may be less or no governmental organisation and supervision of transactions and less or no guarantees by exchange clearing houses. The settlement of the investments and divestments may, as a consequence, not be guaranteed to be executed in accordance with the principle of payment versus delivery and this may give rise to counterparty risk until a trade is settled.

The institutions, including brokerage firms and banks, with which trades are executed, may not have the same credit standing as such institutions usually have and may not be subject to capital adequacy requirements as stringent as those usually applicable. As a result, they may encounter financial difficulties that impair the operational capabilities or the capital position of such counterparty and there can be no assurance that such counterparty will not default or that the relevant Fund will not incur losses as a result.

17. Liquidity risk for derivatives

There is no assurance that a liquid market will exist for any particular derivative or at any particular time or that counterparties will not cease making markets or quoting prices in certain instruments. In such instances, it may not be possible to enter into a desired transaction with respect to an open position, which might adversely affect investment performance.

18. Contractual risks

Some Funds may make investments based on, or enter into contracts described by, significant legal documents. Such documents may include (but not limited to) prospectuses and other offering documents as well as OTC derivative contracts, including contracts for differences and credit default swaps. Whilst a fund manager or trustee of the relevant Fund may seek advice on material matters on behalf of the relevant Fund, there can be no guarantee that any advice given will be accurate, that a contract will be validly executed by the relevant counterparty or that a contract will ultimately prove to be enforceable against the relevant counterparty. Furthermore, the expected outcome of these contracts or investments may not be realised in practice. If these contracts or investments do not produce the expected result, the relevant Fund could suffer significant losses.

19. Failure of brokers and other depositories

There is the possibility that some institutions, including brokerage firms and banks, with which a Fund does business, or with whom the relevant Fund's securities may be entrusted for custodial purposes, will encounter financial difficulties that may impair the operational capabilities or the capital position of the relevant Fund. A Fund may maintain a substantial portion of its assets in clearing accounts pursuant to clearing agreements with clearing firms.

20. Reliance on fund managers

Holders of units in a Fund have no right to participate in the management of the Fund or to make any decisions with respect to the investments to be made by the Fund. Consequently, they must rely on the relevant fund manager with respect to the management and investment decisions of each Fund. In the event that a fund manager cannot continue as the manager of a Fund, which might occur, for example, upon bankruptcy or dissolution, the Fund may have to be terminated and dissolved. Further, in the event that key investment officers of the relevant fund manager cease to provide their investment expertise to the relevant fund manager, the quality of the investment management services provided to the relevant Fund may be adversely affected.

21. Indemnity risks

The fund manager, trustee and other service providers or agents of the relevant Fund or any of their respective affiliates or officers or employees may be entitled to be indemnified in certain circumstances. As a result, there is a risk that the relevant Fund's assets will be used to indemnify such persons, companies or their officers or employees or to satisfy their liabilities as a result of their activities in relation to the relevant Fund.

22. Evolving regulatory risks for funds

Legal, tax and regulatory changes could occur during the term of a Fund which may adversely affect it. The regulatory environment for funds (including alternative and hedge funds) is evolving, and changes in the regulation of such funds may adversely affect the value of investments held by a Fund. In addition, currencies and derivatives markets are subject to comprehensive statutes, regulations and margin requirements. Regulators and self-regulatory organisations and exchanges may be authorised to take extraordinary actions in the event of market emergencies. The regulation of currencies and derivatives transactions and funds that engage in such transactions is an evolving area of law and is subject to modification by government and judicial action. The effect of any future regulatory change on a Fund could be substantial and adverse.

23. Possible adverse tax consequences

No assurance may be given that the manner in which a Fund will be managed and operated, or that the composition of its direct and indirect portfolio investments, will be tax efficient for any particular investor or group of investors. UOBAM does not intend to provide the Client with information regarding the ownership of units of a Fund by residents of any country. A Fund's books and records could be audited by the tax authorities of countries where a portion of its direct and indirect portfolio investments are made, or where a particular investor or group of investors reside. Any such audits could subject a Fund to tax, interest and penalties, as well as incremental accounting and legal expenses. If any Fund is required to incur additional taxes or expenses as a result of subscriptions made by any investor, or become subject to any record-keeping or reporting obligations as a result of permitting any person to remain or be admitted as an investor, the relevant Fund may seek reimbursement of the costs of such taxes, expenses or obligations from such person.

24. Allocation of liabilities among classes of units

Some Funds may issue units in different classes. Although a class of units may be maintained by the relevant Fund separately, with separate accounting records and subscriptions (and investments made therewith) kept in separate accounts, separate classes of units are not separate legal entities. The relevant Fund as a whole, including all such separate classes, is one legal entity. Thus, all of the assets of the relevant Fund are available to meet all of the liabilities of the relevant Fund, regardless of the classes to which such assets or liabilities are attributable. In practice, cross-class liability will usually only arise where any class becomes insolvent and is unable to meet all of its liabilities. In this case, all of the assets of the relevant Fund attributable to other classes may be applied to cover the liabilities of the insolvent class. The assets attributable to any one class will not be isolated from the liabilities attributable to other classes and if the assets of one particular class are insufficient to satisfy the liabilities attributable to such class, then the assets of other classes of units may be charged with such liabilities.

25. Default and insolvency risk

Investments (whether direct or indirect) in deposits with banks and other financial institutions are subject to adverse changes in the financial conditions of such institutions, or in general economic conditions, or both, which may impair the ability of such institutions to make payments of interest and to return the principal. Such institutions' ability to meet their obligations may also be adversely affected by their operation, performance or winding-up, which may increase the potential for default by such institutions. Any default by such institutions could result in substantial losses.

26. Liquidity risk of deposits

Term or fixed deposits may be subject to early withdrawal charges or deductions. Early withdrawals for whatever reason may lead to investment losses.

27. Risks of investing in exchange traded funds ("ETFs") (whether directly or through a Fund)

Although ETFs are designed to track the performance of designated indices, there will be some tracking error between the ETF's actual performance and the hypothetical index return. ETFs will also be exposed to risks associated with indices (see "Risks associated with indices" below).

The market price of ETFs will generally fluctuate in accordance with the supply of and demand for the units of the ETFs and the trading price of ETFs may differ from the ETFs' net asset value. It is impossible to predict whether units in any given ETF will trade at, above or below their net asset value.

Where a Fund invests into exchange traded funds (ETFs), the cost of investing in the Fund may be higher than the cost of investing directly in the underlying ETFs of the Fund, as investors will have to bear the Fund's fees and expenses in addition to the fees and expenses charged by the underlying ETFs.

28. Risks associated with indices

Indices are not actively managed and the selection of the component indices, assets or securities will be made in accordance with the relevant index composition rules and eligibility criteria and by reference to performance criteria or performance outlook. Accordingly, the composition of an index is not designed to follow recommendations or research reports issued by the index provider/sponsor or any other person. No index provider/sponsor has any obligation to take the needs of the ETFs tracking those indices or the investors of the ETFs into consideration in determining, composing or calculating the relevant index.

There is no assurance that an index will continue to be calculated and published or that it will not be amended significantly. Any change to the underlying index may adversely affect the value of the relevant ETF.

An index may also be concentrated in the futures contracts of a single or several futures exchanges. Changes in the financial condition of a futures exchange and changes in economic or political conditions that affect a particular futures exchange can affect the value of the futures contracts that are being traded on the relevant future exchange. Such futures exchange-specific changes may have an impact on the futures contracts that comprise the underlying index in which an ETF is exposed to.

As ETFs are designed to track indices, an investment in ETFs will involve such risks.

29. Risk associated with commodities

Investments in commodities may be subject to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities. If a Portfolio or Fund has exposure to commodities or commodity indices (through its investments in ETFs or otherwise), it will be affected by changes in the prices of commodities. Commodity prices are influenced by, among other things, macro economic factors such as changing supply and demand relationships, climatic and geopolitical conditions, disease and other natural phenomena, agricultural, trade, fiscal, monetary and exchange control programmes and policies of governments (including government intervention in certain markets) and other unforeseeable events.

30. Risks relating to investments in underlying collective investment schemes

A Portfolio or a Fund may from time to time have a large concentration of investments in underlying collective investment schemes and could consequently be subject to significant losses where such underlying schemes decline in value or are otherwise adversely affected. The Portfolio or Fund will be subject to different levels and combinations of risks based on its allocation among the underlying collective investment schemes and the potential impact that the losses and risks of such underlying collective investment schemes may have on the Portfolio or Fund would depend on the size of the Portfolio's or Fund's allocation to them.

2. UOBAM has the right to reject any Order or Investment Application at its absolute discretion without assigning any reason and shall not incur any liability to the Client as a result of UOBAM's rejection.
3. If the Client has invested in any Fund which provides the Client with an option to reinvest any income, UOBAM will select this as the default option unless the Client otherwise Orders.
4. The Client agrees that UOBAM may at its sole discretion place from time to time and at any time any cash or investments from the Client's Portfolio in current, savings, securities and other

For the avoidance of doubt, the Client will be liable for all overdrawn amounts.

5. Transactions and turnaround time

- (a) All Transactions will be subject to the minimum limits applicable to the Account as prescribed by UOBAM from time to time.
- (b) If the Client gives UOBAM an Application Form which does not satisfy the minimum transaction requirements set by UOBAM, UOBAM may, but shall not be obliged to:

- (d) Delays in any Transaction may occur if an Investment Application does not provide sufficient details for UOBAM to act on the application, if the correct signatures are not provided, or where Orders are illegible or incomplete. UOBAM shall bear no liability or responsibility whatsoever to the Client for any such delays.
- (e) Units in any Fund to be acquired or realised pursuant to an Investment Application will be acquired or realised at the prevailing unit price at the relevant valuation date for that Fund on the date that the relevant fund manager (on behalf of that Fund) accepts and carries out the transaction request received from UOBAM, and in the case of subscription applications, to be accepted only on a cleared funds basis, such later valuation date after the date the Fund (or the relevant person, on behalf of the Fund) receives the Application Monies.
- (f) Application Monies will be remitted to the relevant Fund after deducting all fees and charges due to UOBAM.
- (g) The Client acknowledges that all prices of units quoted by UOBAM to the Client are based on prices provided by the relevant fund manager (which may be UOBAM) and are indicative only. The Client further accepts that the applicable unit prices in relation to an Investment Application may be different from the indicated or quoted prices and UOBAM shall bear no liability or responsibility whatsoever to the Client for any such difference.

- (h) While UOBAM endeavours to process Investment Applications in a timely manner, completion of the relevant Transactions are dependent on the individual fund manager's operations and processes and on the specific procedures for each particular Fund. In the case of non-UOBAM Funds, the Client agrees that UOBAM shall bear no liability or responsibility to the Client whatsoever for any act, omission or default by the relevant non-UOBAM Fund or its fund manager.

6. The Client agrees that UOBAM has the right to suspend the processing of Transactions of units in any Fund or the provision and/or publication of the prices of units in any Fund as a due to any of the following:

- (a) when dealings in the Fund have been suspended;
- (b) when any of the recognised stock exchanges or markets on which the unit prices are quoted is closed other than the normal closing hours or days or has restricted dealings;
- (c) when the fund manager (which may be UOBAM) of any Fund is unable to repatriate money, or considers that any transfer of money for purposes of completing the subscription or realisation of units is not possible at the normal exchange rates (if applicable);
- (d) when an Investment Application is not given according to these Terms and Conditions and/or the terms and conditions of the relevant Investment Application;
- (e) the occurrence of any other circumstances which, in the UOBAM's opinion, renders the calculation or provision or publication of fair and accurate unit prices not possible.

UOBAM will not be responsible for any losses that may be suffered by the Client due to such suspension.

7. The Client acknowledges, agrees and understands that:

- (a) the value of the units in any Fund, and the income accruing to such units, may rise or fall, and the Client may not receive a return of some or all of its capital, a particular rate of return on capital, or any return at all; the Funds are not bank deposits and they are neither guaranteed nor insured by UOBAM and/or its Affiliates;
- (b) the risks of investment of the Funds invested into, including the possible loss of the principal amount invested;

- (bb) any action or omission, default, fraud or negligence by the non-UOBAM Fund or its fund manager;
 - (cc) the performance of the obligations represented by the non-UOBAM Fund or its fund manager; and
 - (dd) UOBAM is assisting the Client to subscribe for units in such non-UOBAM Funds and does not act as agent on behalf of the non-UOBAM Fund or its fund manager.
- 8. If UOBAM provides the Client with general information that may be relevant to any non-UOBAM Fund, such information shall not be treated or construed as advice to the Client and UOBAM will not be responsible for any loss that the Client may suffer or incur as a result of any action taken or omitted to be taken by the Client on the basis of such information.
- 9. UOBAM will not make any investments on the Client's behalf via a Fund Direct Account without the Client's Order to do so. In making available to the Client the Fund Direct Account and any investment thereunder, UOBAM has not taken and will not take into consideration the investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs of any particular person (including its existing investment portfolio or the affordability of the investment for such person) nor does UOBAM make any express or implied recommendation concerning any investment. The Client acknowledges and agrees that:
 - (a) the Client will place no reliance on UOBAM in making any investment decision;
 - (b) in deciding on any Transaction the Client shall do so entirely on the Client's own assessment of the merits of any such Transaction; and
 - (c) the Client is responsible for ensuring that the investments made by the Client meet its investment objectives and that the Client is in compliance with Laws that may be applicable to the Client when making any investment.
- 10. Each Fund is offered on the basis of information set out in the relevant offering document of each Fund. The current versions of the offering documents for each Fund (and in relation to non-UOBAM Funds, as provided to UOBAM by the relevant fund managers) may be obtained from the Website. The Client should read the offering document of the relevant Fund for information about the disclosures and risks associated with the Fund and its underlying investments before deciding whether or not to invest in the relevant Fund in the light of the Client's particular investment needs, objectives, risk profile and financial circumstances. In submitting an Investment Application to subscribe for units in a Fund, the Client acknowledges that it has obtained and read from the Website or the relevant fund manager up-to-date versions of the offering documents of the Fund. As the offering documents for all non-UOBAM Funds available are prepared by the relevant fund managers, UOBAM is not responsible for the accuracy of the information provided in such offering documents and shall not be liable for any outcome arising from the use of the information provided in such offering documents.
- 11. The Client represents and warrants that it understands and is aware that the following should not be taken as an indication of the investment potential of any Fund:

- (a) the credibility of the fund manager or any sub-manager managing the Fund;
- (b) the probity of the investment company offering that Fund for investment purposes; or
- (c) the fact that the Fund is made available for investment under the Fund Direct Account.

12. The Client consents to receiving Fund reports by electronic means via the Website, including by provision of an electronic link to the relevant reports. The latest Fund reports may be obtained from UOBAM or the Website at the frequencies stipulated by the relevant authorities (and in relation to non-UOBAM Funds, provided UOBAM has received the same from the relevant fund managers). The Client may choose to request for hardcopy Fund reports within 1 month from the notification of the availability of such Fund reports. 13. Termination and winding-up of Funds

- (a) The Client acknowledges and agrees that:
 - (i) UOBAM may give the Client such prior notice as may be required by Law or stipulated by the relevant authorities (and in the absence of such requirement or stipulation, in accordance with its usual practice) of the termination and/or winding-up of any of the Fund in which units are acquired under the Account, and in relation to non-UOBAM Funds, if UOBAM is notified that such Fund will be closed to further investments and/or is or is to be terminated or wound up (subject to UOBAM having received such notice in good time from the fund manager or trustee or other responsible person of the relevant Fund);
 - (ii) if notice of termination and/or winding-up of a Fund is given and units in the Fund under the Account are to be redeemed, UOBAM shall use the proceeds from such redemption to subscribe into other Funds only if it receives the relevant Investment Application from the Client within the period stated in the notice of termination and/or winding-up. In the absence of such Investment Application, UOBAM shall pay the proceeds of such redemption to the Client.
- (b) Notwithstanding anything in these Terms and Conditions, UOBAM has the right to discontinue or suspend the offer of any non-UOBAM Fund through UOBAM.
- (c) The Client authorises UOBAM to redeem the Client's investments (if any) in any Fund with a stipulated maturity date upon its maturity as specified by the relevant fund manager and pay the proceeds from such redemption to the Client. UOBAM shall use the proceeds to subscribe into other Funds only if it receives the relevant Investment Application from the Client on or before the maturity of the first Fund.
